If you were to do anything differently in the residency application process, what would that be?

Nothing

Encourage people to talk with near-peers and really know their specific specialty because everything from competitiveness to basics is really specialty-specific.

Perhaps interview at fewer programs

Please provide any other information that might be helpful to UCSF students who will apply to your specialty choice in the future

There isn't a lot of career advice out there, so definitely reach out to residents at UCSF and the career advisors. Residents in particular are really helpful and mentored me along the way.

It is very helpful to find mentors in the field through research projects, both to learn more about the field and seek advice during the residency application process!
